RUG MATERIALS

SYNTHETIC FIBRES

Modern technology has provided us with a huge variety of synthetic fibres, with different properties and features.

ACRYLIC

Acrylic is a super soft fibre that holds dye extremely well, allowing for a wide variety of colours from the softest pastel to the boldest brights. It is an excellent choice for kids rooms, lounge rooms and bedrooms. As with wool, the pile will shed slightly in the first three to six months and reduce after this time - choose a low pile acrylic rug if you want the benefits of acrylic with less shedding. This makes acrylic best suited to low traffic areas.

HEAT SET POLYPROPYLENE

This type of polypropylene can be finished in many different ways to mimic more expensive natural fibres—from soft and shiny silk (Anastasia) to a matte, rugged Berber wool (Morocco). The fibre is heat set. This refers to a stage in the yarn production process whereby two or more yarn fibres are twisted together and then heated to ensure the yarns remain joined, permitting greater design flexibility and appearance. This fibre creates the easiest care rug option around; being stain and spill resistant, non shed, easy to clean and perfect for all spaces. Heat Set Polypropylene is water proof, and is used in outdoor rugs as both the pile and the backing.

POLYESTER

Polyester is a soft and shiny fibre that is usually found in shag rugs and is a low to no shed material.

VISCOSE

Viscose is a super soft and shiny fibre that can be used on its own or to add soft, shimmering touches to natural fibre rugs. Viscose is a shiny rug that resembles silk.

WOOL

Hand made wool rug, it is velvet, soft-to-touch, and will compliment your décor by offering a distinctly sophisticated feel.

Wool is a popular choice for being naturally flame retardant, durable; warm in winter and cool in summer. Wool holds colour well, while maintaining its' natural look. New wool rugs will shed lightly in the first three to six months and be low shed after this time.

“Rugs can vary in colour from photo to actual product due to colour printing in Catalog/Online.”

RUG CARE

Your rug will take a few days to flatten out. Some rugs when new may shed for a few weeks, this is normal and should ease after vacuuming regularly.

Vacuum your rug once or twice a week to remove dust and dirt. Regular vacuuming removes dirt on your rug's surface and will add more durability to the rug's life.

Rug underlays are a great way to keep a rug in place and is recommended for smaller sizes i.e 160x230 cm

Professional cleaning is always recommended to keep your rug clean and as new.
